

AFTE AWARD FOR THE BEST MASTER'S DISSERTATION OR RESEARCH PAPER
ON FINANCE AND TREASURY (2025 EDITION)

RULES

1) Purpose

The French association of corporate treasurers ("AFTE"), in partnership with its sponsors, has decided to reward one or more Master's theses on subjects pertaining to Finance and Treasury.

These master's dissertation or Research Papers must be written by students.

After due deliberation, a jury will decide to award up to three prizes (the "Prize") by category, on the basis of the quality of the theses or papers submitted. Information on the Prize and a list of partners may be obtained from the AFTE website. The Award rules are described here below.

2) Subject

The subject may be either freely chosen or set.

In the former case, the subject should relate to Finance or Treasury. Each candidate is responsible for clearly stating the subject to be treated.

The following documents can be found in the appendix:

- . the prize-winning subjects of the 18 last editions of the Award.
- . a list of suggested subjects.

4) Content

It is imperative that the master's dissertation or Research paper presents the author's contribution to the subject addressed, and not be a simple description of an existing situation or a copy/compilation of available documents, even if said description of a given situation may legitimately be considered a subject of a subsection of the paper.

5) Registration and submission

The opening date for registration is April 30, 2025 and the deadline for registration is September 15, 2025. Students must register by email to madleen.patry@afte.com with the following information: first name, last name, title and outline of the dissertation, name of the institution attended, title of the year of study concerned, and a certificate of attendance or a photocopy of the student card for the 2024-2025 academic year.

The master's Dissertation or Research paper should be sent to AFTE at madleen.patry@afte.com by e-mail. The deadline for receipt is also September 15, 2025. Any application received after the deadline will not be eligible for the competition.

Documents to be submitted by Monday, September 15 for each participant:

- Letter of recommendation from the thesis supervisor
- Final dissertation in PDF format
- Color portrait photo (good resolution)
- Summary of dissertation in French only (2,500 to 3,000 characters minimum)

6) Jury

The master's Dissertation or Research paper will be judged by a jury composed of one or several members of the AFTE board of directors, and of several other professionals of the financial sector. The exact composition of the jury will be approved by the AFTE board of directors at each prize-related session.

The AFTE board of directors may decide to modify the composition of the jury at any time, without informing the candidates. The jury shall designate a chairman at its first meeting.

7) Deliberations and decisions of the jury

A first deliberation will pre-select a maximum of 10 master's Dissertation or Research paper by category after having read all documents received. A second deliberation will select the winners.

The 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes in each category will be awarded during "Les Journées de l'AFTE" on November 27 and 28, 2025.

There will be 2 categories for the 19th edition of the AFTE Prize for the best finance and treasury master's thesis:

- A Treasury and Financing award.
- A Finance award.

The jury will meet as many times as it deems necessary, and under conditions that it will specify. Its deliberations will be held in camera, and no minutes will be available. Its decisions will not have to be motivated, and will be without appeal.

8) Copyright

The author(s) of any master's Dissertation or Research paper authorize(s) the AFTE and its sponsors to reproduce, without charge, all or part of their thesis or paper in their publications, with the sole requirement of indicating the source: name of the author and educational affiliation, to the exclusion of all other information.

This notion of publication includes the posting of the dissertation or research paper on the AFTE and its sponsors / partners websites.

9) Results and awards

The author(s) of the prize-winning theses / paper(s) shall be informed by any means chosen by AFTE, which shall inform the author(s) of the procedures for the presentation of said prize :

- RIB for transfer of prize money after the event
- Contact details of the 2 guests present for the presentation
- Preparation of their pitch for the presentation of their memoir (2mn) at the award ceremony

The author of the prize-winning master's dissertation or Research paper may be asked to do, a video pitching their dissertation or research paper, and a short verbal presentation of his works at the prize remittance.

The jury reserves the right to award no prize if it judges that none of the papers submitted warrants a prize.

10) Prize

The nature of the prize is described in the communications.

11) Changes

As is customary, the AFTE reserves the right, should circumstances require it, to change, postpone, or cancel the present prize for best Paper on any ground whatsoever, without being held liable.

12) Acceptance

The act of submitting a Paper to the AFTE implies full acceptance of these rules.
